PAPER TOWNS AND GHOSTS TOWNS OF ALLEN COUNTY, INDIANA- published in 1989.

submitted by Barbara Gorney, GC 977.201 Allen County Library, Fort Wayne, IN

During the formative years of Allen County, many towns and communities were platted but never developed, while others became active centers of trade. Still another group came into existence without being formally platted as a town or as a village, and grew to flourishing communities. As the title of this piece tells you this is a brief article of the paper towns, or plats of proposed towns which never came into being; and the ghost towns, or communities that died out leaving little or not trace of their former existence. This information comes from many sources and the original document tells us histories, manuscripts and documents, plat books, deed records, old maps, and interviews with older residents of the county were used.

Only a few will be mentioned in this article; ones that are most directly associated with Besançon, Jackson, Washington or Jefferson Townships.

The site of the town of EAST LIBERTY was in the SW quarter of Section 29 and the NW quarter of Section 32, Monroe Twp., about 2 1/2 miles South of the town of Monroeville. John Burger platted the town 27 February 1848 and it contained 44 lots. A post office was established, also a tannery, a saloon, several churches, a school, and one of the largest general stores in the part of the county. When the Ohio/Indiana RR was built to Ft Wayne in 1852, the people of East Liberty expected the line to extend to their town. Instead, the line was built through Monroeville and East Liberty gradually passed out of existence, while Monroeville prospered. Today, all that remains on the site are a church and several homes.

The site of the plat of ACADEMIE was located in the SW quarter of section 2, Washington Township, on the Wallen Road at the crossing of the Ft Wayne, Jackson, and Saginaw Railroad, now the New York Central Railroad. Samuel Carey Evans entered the plat in 1874. It consisted of 36 lots, with two north-south streets named Railroad and Evans. Urbine was the only east-west street. Academie was platted with the idea that it would become a rival of Wallen, one and one-half miles west. Just one and one-half miles east was the Academy of the Sacred Heart, an institution founded and for many years maintained by the Sisters of the Holy Cross as a Catholic seminary for girls and young women. The plat was named after the institution.

President's Message...

In the afternoon of March 23, 2003 the Besançon Historical Society and the St. Louis Catholic Church choir presented a Lenten service. Mary Jane Novosel gave us a French welcome speech and then, the English translation. She read the letter sent by the French Embassy in Detroit wishing us a great day and to keep the friendship alive between our two countries. Gene Yoquelet spoke of celebrating Lent in France. Shirley Yoquelet recited a parable that was very thought provoking. And the choir sang with voices that were heavenly! The choir was led by Rita Bruggeman and Jane Lomont was the organist. Refreshments were provided by members of BHS after the service in the school lunchroom.

On July 19th the French Embassy in Chicago will honor Indiana veterans who participated in the D-Day invasion at Normandy, or who helped in the liberation of France. This ceremony will be held at All Saints Catholic Church in Logansport, Indiana and is sponsored by the Indiana Veteran Service Officer's Association. Veterans must submit an application in order to receive a special certificate.

I have just read Flags of Our Fathers, by John Bradley. It concerns the WWII fight on Iwo Jima, and a look into the lives of the six men who raised the second flag. Yes, a larger flag replaced the small one and gave us an unforgettable picture. A statue of the flag raising stands in Arlington Cemetery today. This book brought home the horrors of war and how dedicated these men were to winning.

Since a large part of my family settled in Ohio, I have researched in many of those counties. In Ohio is the State Library and Historical Society. The State Library of Ohio has atlases, Ohio city directories, family histories, census indexes, cemetery records, military records, immigration lists, Ohio DAR collection and Ohio Huguenot Society Society collection. The library has town records for the New England states, church records for the mid Atlantic states and county records for Ohio southern border states. The library is located at 274 East First Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43201.

The web site is:

winslo.state.oh.us/services/genealogy/index.html

The Ohio Historical Society is noted for their Ohio newspaper collection. Other materials are state death certificates, military records, Ohio inmate records, land tracts, Ohio school for the deaf records, county records, Ohio census records, WPA files and Ohio Civil War pensions index. The address is: 1982 Velma Ave., Columbus, Ohio, 43211. The collection catalog can be found at: www.ohiohistory.org/occ.

The Historical Society is the same entrance as the fairgrounds. There is a museum in the same building as the Historical Society that is worth a look. However, the pioneer village on the grounds of the museum is closed because the funds have been cut.

I hope everyone has a great summer. Barbara

FAMILY REUNION

Was Somewhat Delayed But None the Less Joyous.

Yesterday afternoon Xavier Reuille, aged twelve, and Claude Reuille, arrived in Fort Wayne over the Wabash to meet their mother and she could not be found. They had been in an orphans' home in Buffalo and reached here penniless. The money sent to them by their mother had been used in paying their way to this city. There is no such a name in the new city directory and Township Trustee Gearin took the boys in charge and placed them at the Weber hotel over night. The boys wept bitterly and it was difficult to console them. Trustee Gearin this morning learned that their mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Reuille had just purchased one of the Mason farms near Academie, this county, for the purpose of making a home for her two sons. Her husband was killed three years ago and in order to take care of her family she was forced to place her children in an orphans home near Buffalo. After accumulating a sum of money to make a payment on the farm she bought it and sent for her sons. She instructed the authorities to send her two boys direct to Fort Wayne. When she did so she thought that the Nickel Plate was the only through route and the boys would come on that road. She was at each of the three trains yesterday and went home with a sad heart because her children did not arrive. She was overcome with joy when Trustee Gearin took her two boys to the farm north of the city this afternoon.

Note: Mrs. Reuille was the former Catherine Pettijean. Her husband, Louis Simon Reuille was killed in a farming accident, in 1901. These children were grandsons of Jane Morow's great-great grandfather, Joseph Reuille.

All on Account of Louisa.

Louisa Pepe thinks Edward Hippenbaum ought to pay her $5,000 for lacerating her heart to a terrible extent. The confiding Louisa states in her complaint filed yesterday in the superior court that the artful Edward wooed and won her maiden affections and that with lip glued to lip the twain on the 24th of October last swore eternal fealty to one another and entered into a matrimonial contract to be consummated either on the joyous Xmas day past, or on January 1st, of the present year. The natal day of our Lord passed by and so did the opening of the new year. Edward presumably made good resolutions and eschewed his bad habits for a time, but he forgot poor pining Louisa, who alone and desolate in her papa's parlor with the light turned down, sat pensive and anxious. Her Edward had evidently given her the shake unmistakable and his continual absence caused Louisa to grow pale and the contour of her form to lose more or less of its plumpness. One day some mercenary friend whispered, "Sue him for damages," and Louisa bent her ear and listened. Her appetite grew better, her avoirdupois increased, the roses bloomed again on her cheeks, and she hied her to those eminent counselors, Coombs, Morris & Bell, related her tale and the men of law speedily drew up a complaint for violation of the marriage contract, asking $5,000 damages. If Edward is made to pay Louisa that snug little sum, she can speedily catch on to anything in the shape of masculinity, even to a talented reporter.

Editor's note: In order to always promote and introduce material of interest to our readers, - you - the members of Besançon Historical Society, we are happy to include any queries to help you in your research. We welcome all of you to send in questions you might have or information you would like to share. Please contact Barb Gorney or Joyce Crowl.

QUERIES

a23 Information wanted on: Bona LaPalillotte (Laplu), Mother of Victor Martin, who was born abt 1845, died July 24, 1924, in Allen County, IN. Husband: Nicolas Martin, b: 13 Oct 185 in Courchaton, France b23 Arlene Dodane Curts found some interesting articles in the Louisville, Ohio Stark County newspaper, dated October, 1912 and in 1913. There are two lengthy descriptions of the second and third annual reunion of descendants of Constantine and Seraphine Genegeuse Dodane including all the names of those present. The article mentions the third reunion would be held in New Haven, IN. (1914) at the home of Joseph Dodane. E. M. Youtz made a group photograph. If you have any knowledge of these reunions or of the photograph, please contact Arlene. (The one article gives much information of the history of the Dodanes, first to Ohio and then to Indiana. It will featured in a later issue).

TOWNLEY came into prominence after construction of the Findley, Ft Wayne and Western railroad through the place, about 1890. The village was never formally platted but developed into quite active trade center. A general store, a grain elevator, and a church existed here, and about twenty houses were built.

A severe tornado called "the storm of the Century" struck Townley on Sunday, March 29, 1920, completely wrecking the village; everything, every building, every telephone pole and fence pole was blown to the ground or simply blown away and killing four of its residents. No rebuilding was ever done, and in the meantime, the railroad had been abandoned. Townley was located in Jackson Township, on the route of the present U.S. Hwy 30.

BALDWIN was platted by Timothy Baldwin, on May 19, 1890, on his land in Jackson Township. The east line of this was on the Ohio-Indiana State Line. The rise and decline of this small town lasted in a space of little more than a quarter of a century. Fire destroyed the first depot, and there is a story that the people of the community stole the station at Tillman on the same railroad, took it to Baldwin on flat cars and placed it in on the Ohio side of the line. William Noble operated a large hoop mill, turning out thirty to thirty-five thousand hoops per day. He also manufactured hubs for buggy and wagon wheels. With the abandonment of the Findlay railroad in 1915 Baldwin soon went out of existence.

HESSEN CASSEL (1863)

The St. Joseph Roman Catholic Parish was organized in 1841 and a church building was erected the same year on the old Piqua Road about 5 miles south of the present city of Fort Wayne. The church building was erected in 1861 and the school building in 1878. No improvements were ever made on the plat; which consisted of two streets; St Joseph and George Streets. Many of the early settlers in the vicinity migrated from Hesse, Germany, for which the purposed town was named.

Following is a list of cities, towns, villages, paper towns, ghost towns, church communities, trading centers, mill settlements, old post office sites, rail stations etc. This list is not complete, and we will only list the ones pertaining to Besançon. Dates shown are definite of platting or founding. Where dates are not shown, information is uncertain or conflicting.

CARLTON GIANT

SEPTEMBER 21, 1914

JUNE 5, 2003

To the family and many friends of Carlton M. Giant, the Besançon Historical Society extends a hand in friendship, and a heart in mourning for a dedicated member, not only of the entire community in which he and his wife, Charlotte Smith Giant lived, but to anyone who ever met him.

Carlton was the oldest son of Joseph and Cloe Myers Giant and was born and raised in Monroeville, Indiana. He graduated at the age of 16 years, and received his teaching degree from Ball State University. The first school at he taught at was Jackson Twp School near Howe and 101. He was a member of St. Louis Catholic Church and active in all parish activities. Carlton was the first president of the Besançon Parish Council, the first president of the CYO and headed up the committee to restore the stained glass windows at the church. He was a member of the historical society, serving as treasurer. His career in the school system spanned over 35 years, and one of his accomplishments was instrumental in starting Amish children attending high school. He also spent 30 years as an insurance agent and farmed an 80 acre farm.

The GEANT/GIANT history and genealogy was featured in Issue 14, Fall, 2000, the same issue that featured a picture of Carlton and his wife, Charlotte, celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary. They were married May 25, 1940 at St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church, Monroeville.

Carlton's great-great-grandparents, Jean Pierre and Anastansia Sallier Geant, came to America from Rougemont, Dept. of Haute Rhine, France in 1840 with a 7 other families. Carlton's great grandfather, Jacques Giant is listed in the 1868 "registre" of Saint Louis de Besançon Catholic Church. His great grandmother was Catherine Monnier Giant. The Giant name is intertwined with many Besançon families.

He is survived by his wife of 53 years, Charlotte, five daughters: Nancy Canull, Jacqueline Mann, Jeannine Phillips, Michele Thomas, two sons: Stanley and Gregory, two brothers: Randolph H. "Boob" and James L., two sisters: Maybelle Ryan and Marcella Sorg, 23 grandchildren, and 14 great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by one brother, Joseph "Jake" Giant.

"You are not only good to yourself, but the cause of goodness in others". Socrates
