The success of any public school system depends upon a variety of forces involved. The administrative branch of these is an integral part of a complex organization. The local school board, superintendent, principals, and supervisors all work together to emphasize the idea of a democratic management and association of all school personnel. A very conscientious endeavor has been made through the administration here in Fort Wayne to coordinate all school activity to bring about a spirit of cooperation and good will between school personnel and school patronage. His organizational ability coupled with his knowledge of school management has been instrumental in saving the Fort Wayne Schools from financial collapse during the depression years when he became superintendent on through the trying days of World War II and our present day world situation.

Mr. Abbett has served as Superintendent of the Fort Wayne Public Schools now for twenty years. Mr. L. C. The effectiveness of the entire school program, through his cooperative thoughts and actions and outstanding leadership can readily be seen by tracing the development of the public schools during his tenure. "We Have Come Twenty Years", Mr. Abbett's annual report, shows much that he has accomplished. He has been a most competent leader and we owe him a vote of thanks for establishing and maintaining the very highest standards in the field of education.
